

March 1, 2005

Contact: Kristina M. Ruidas
Phone: (323) 262-0997
Fax: (323) 262-0946
www.henaac.org

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Former HENAAC Scholar Joshua Reeves Selected For USA Today's 2005 All-USA College Academic Team.

HENAAC would like to congratulate two-time HENAAC Scholar Joshua Reeves for being selected for USA Today's 2005 All-USA College Academic Team.

Reeves is an Electrical Engineering Major at Stanford University and was recognized for co-founding Technology and Education: Connecting Cultures, which connects students in the United States and China. Students carry out social projects which incorporate technology and education. Among Reeves' numerous activities and accomplishments, he has a patent pending on an electronic device to aid muscular rehabilitation and is doing research in a neuroprosthetics lab, is president of the Stanford Engineering Association and won a grant to study technology and development in the Czech Republic and Poland.

Twenty students were selected for the All-USA College Academic team and will receive a trophy and $2,500 cash award.

Reeves was the recipient of the 2003 HENAAC/Ford Motor Company Scholarship and 2004 HENAAC/SBC Foundation Scholarship.

USA Today student and teacher recognition program website:
www.allstars.usatoday.com

###